

Lining of Cat Food Cans

How safe is the lining of a pet food can?

Posted: Wed Nov 20 00:00:00 PST 2002

Many cat owners express concern over the cans in which cat food is packaged. After a can is opened, they want to know if they should remove the unused portion of food and store it in another container rather than just covering the can. Pet food manufacturers generally use cans with an inert lining. If the lid used for storage of the canned pet food fits well, and the food is used in two to three days, owners need not worry.