

Weight Control in a Two-Cat House

Exercise alone won't help a cat lose weight. The two cats may need separate mealtimes.

J. Veronika Kiklevich, DVM

Posted: Tue Jan 11 00:00:00 PST 2005

You might want to try to limit the amount of dry food that Maggie eats. Over the years many of my clients have solved this problem in different ways. You might try placing Tozi's food up on higher grounds, preferably a place that Maggie is unable to reach. Then you'll want to place a little food down lower where they both (or probably primarily Maggie) have access to it. If all else fails, you might consider separating the two during mealtime.