

Stitch Rejects My Great Halloween Idea

Crystal Apilado's cat is definitely not amused by her costume choice.

By Crystal Apilado

Posted: October 30, 2009, 3 a.m. EDT

Halloween is this weekend and I'm excited that I get to partake in the fun of it this year. Last year I was busy making food for Tristan's birthday party the next day and the year before that I was moving, so needless to say, I haven't had a chance to enjoy a fun Halloween in at least two years.

I've been toying with the possibility of dressing up as a farmer. Mainly because Tristan is going to be a pig this year (he has a fascination with pigs). And while strolling through the store I found a rooster costume cap for Stitch. I thought it would be fun to make a little barnyard group with the three of us so I brought it home.

Stitch was not enthused about this idea. In fact I'm pretty sure he has totally rejected my idea of having a cute Halloween photo of the farmer, the pig and the rooster. I believe it took a total of about three minutes for him to shake the rooster costume off. And trust me when I say that his facial expressions pretty much said it all. Luckily I was able to capture them for you.

Cat Expression 1 –
The Shame & Humiliation
The Rage & Anger
The Shock & Reflection
(How could she do this to me?)
To read more Cat Blogs, click here

Cat Expression 2 –
Cat Expression 3 –

Cat Expression 4 – The Triumph