

Green Home Guide

Tips on setting up an eco-friendly household for you and your cat companions.

By Lindsay Getz

While plenty of eco-savvy Americans have taken steps to reduce their carbon footprints by living greener lifestyles, most forget to worry about their cat's "carbon pawprint."

But the products you buy your cats and even the food they consume can be detrimental to the environment. Consider setting up an eco-friendly household that will not only help protect the environment, but can make your house safer for your cats, too.

Get the June 2009 issue of CAT FANCY to read the full article.