

Health News

Get the Facts on Feline Cancer

By Ruth MacPete, DVM

Cancer is one of the leading causes of death in cats over the age of 10. According to veterinary oncologist Laurel Williams from North Carolina State University's College of Veterinary Medicine, the most common feline cancers are lymphoma, soft-tissue sarcomas and skin cancers. Fortunately, you can take these steps to give your cat better odds:

**Read the full article in the November 2008 issue of CAT FANCY.****