

Updated 09-08-06

Stay up-to-date with the latest cat news from all around the country.

Posted: September 08, 2006, 5 a.m. EST

Veterinarians Check Hundreds of Sick Cats

A team of doctors from Cornell's Veterinarian Hospital arrived in Cortlandville, N.Y., to check out more than 270 cats that were rescued from filthy conditions, WSYR-TV in East Syracuse, N.Y. reports. Read the article

Licenses for Cats Scratched

Cats will be free from now on -- as long as they are kept inside, in their own yards or on a leash, The (Madison, Wisconsin) Capital Times reports. Read the article

Infected Cats Prompt Warning

The condition of a couple of strays has the Kitimat Humane Society concerned about the well-being of people's cats, The Northern (British Columbia, Canada) Sentinel reports. Read the article

Rescuers Capture, Remove Abandoned Cats

While the rescue of dozens of abandoned cats continues at a vacant South Side house, the city of Youngstown seeks its own humane officer, The Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator reports. Read the article