

The CatChannel Newswire

Top stories: Lion cub and housecat become best friends; pet owners voice presidential picks.

Posted: July 9, 2008 2 a.m. EDT

Lion Cub and Housecat Become Best Friends

Arnie, a ginger housecat, and Zara, a lion cub, both from Linton Zoo, teamed up after Zara's mother was unable to rear her, the Daily Mail (United Kingdom) reports.

Read the article

Poll: Pet Owners Prefer McCain Over Obama

If the presidential election goes to the dogs, John McCain is looking like best in show. Pets are a longtime presidential tradition for which the presumed Republican nominee seems well prepared, with more than a dozen. Democratic candidate Barack Obama, on the other hand, doesn't have a pet at home, although he has promised his daughters a dog after the election, win or lose. The pet-owning public seems to have noticed the difference, The Associated Press reports.

Read the article

"Cat Crisis" Ensues After Weekend Drop-Off

Cats — 50 or so — found forced on top of each other inside small cages and left by the rear garage door of the Fairfield, Ohio, Area Humane Society, The Lancaster (Ohio) Eagle-Gazette reports.

Read the article