

The CatChannel Newswire

Top stories: Having pregnant cats may cost pet owners; a Utah sanctuary for animals and humans.

Posted: August 22, 2008 2 a.m. EDT

Springfield Mulls Fees for Pregnant Cats

Springfield may follow the lead of another Missouri city and impose a fee for having pregnant dogs or cats, the Fort Mill Times (South Carolina) reports.

Read the article

Feral Cat Proposal Discussed in Las Vegas

A proposed code that would make it legal to tend feral-cat colonies stirred an emotional debate between supporters and critics, most of whom described themselves as animal lovers, the Las Vegas Review-Journal reports.

Read the article

In Utah Near Zion, an Animal Sanctuary for People Too

Angel Canyon, a postcard-perfect, rust-colored sandstone canyon outside of Kanab, Utah, is home to the Best Friends Animal Sanctuary, said to be the country's largest no-kill animal shelter. Amid these 33,000 acres of sand, juniper and sagebrush, volunteers and sanctuary workers have built air-conditioned shelters, offices, banquet halls and outdoor enclosures to house and care for up to 2,000 abandoned animals, including cats, dogs, horses and rabbits, the Los Angeles Times reports.

Read the article