

The CatChannel Newswire

Top stories: Review finds killed cub was no threat to Southern California town; columnist shares thoughts on keeping cats inside.

Posted: April 9, 2009, 3 a.m. EDT

Killed Cub Was No Threat to Town, Review Finds

Police officers Santa Paula, Calif., were not justified in shooting a mountain lion cub and the killing fell outside the department's own rules, according to an outside review, the Associated Press reports.

Read the article >>

Pets May Become Latest Victims of Climate Change

Pets are normally sheltered from the harsh realities of wild living, but climate change could change that, New Scientist (United Kingdom) reports.

Read the article >>

Keep Your Cat in the House, Says Columnist

Aunt Moose, as she is known, is said to be 140 in people-years. And the cat's longevity is attributed to one thing: When I adopted her in Philadelphia, five households and one husband ago, the ASPCA required that we keep her inside, Tina Kelley reports in The New York Times.

Read the article >>