

The CatChannel Newswire

Top stories: Furry pals can be partners in fitness; Michigan city on alert after rabid kitten found.

Posted: July 10, 2009, 3 a.m. EDT

Furry Pals Can Be Partners in Fitness

Tara Brown of Venice Beach, Calif., noticed that her white, spotted cat, Lucky Cat, would scurry between her feet whenever she pumped barbells. Rather than pushing her away, Brown got inspired. Her mother often exercised with her cats and had given her a 1997 how-to book called "Catflexing," CNN.com reports.

Read the article >>

Michigan City on Alert After Rabid Kitten Found

A kitten found on a school campus in Bloomfield Hills tested positive for rabies, prompting school officials to notify parents in case a student was infected, reports the Detroit Free Press.

Read the article >>

Terminally Ill Cats Get a Second Chance

Yo the cat loves movie time and sleeping with his human companion. One might not consider any of these activities out of the ordinary. But Yo isn't an ordinary cat. This almost 13 year-old boy suffers from liver cancer, Examiner.com reports

Read the article >>