

The CatChannel Newswire

Top stories: Wildlife filmmakers focusing on endangered cats; high school students learn vet skills.

Posted: November 17, 2009, 3 a.m. EST

Wildlife Filmmakers Focusing on Endangered Cats

South African wildlife photographers and authors Dereck and Beverly Joubert are working with the National Geographic Society and other international groups on the Big Cats Initiative, an effort to halt the extinction of these remarkable animals.
Read the article >>

High School Students Learn Vet Skills

Learning science seems a little more relevant when there is a wagging tail and a pair of trusting eyes looking up from the examination table. That, any way, is what several students in an advanced animal science class at Snohomish (Wash.) High School have concluded, reports the Associated Press.
Read the article>>

Abused Kitten Sticky Finds a New Home

A tiny kitten rescued from a sticky situation has found a purr-fect new home thanks to a big-hearted policeman, reports the Birmingham (England) Mail.
Read the article>>