

Garfield Crosses the Pond

Catch the tubby tabbys latest adventure in theaters June 16.

Garfield, Odie and their owner, Jon, take their penchant for misadventure to London in Garfield: A Tail of Two Kitties. The computer-animated cat surprises Jon by stowing away in his luggage, and the mishaps soon follow.

Garfield (voiced by Bill Murray) soon ends up switching places with a royal cat named Prince. Prince has just inherited an estate from his owner, Lady Eleanor, and Garfield wastes no time enjoying the attention of a butler (Ian Abercrombie) and a houseful of servants and subjects. Meanwhile, Prince lives the simple life with Jon (Breckin Meyer) and Odie. He samples lasagna for the first time and watches as Jon woos his veterinarian girlfriend, Liz (Jennifer Love Hewitt).

Garfield's reign as royalty is in jeopardy, however. Lady Eleanor's nephew, Lord Dargis (Billy Connolly), wants the estate and all it entails, and he plans to eliminate what stands in his way: the royal cat. Garfield's bigger, better world is soon turned upside down, and as usual, Odie and Jon are soon pulled into the thick of things.
