

American Humane Association Congratulates Emmy Nominees

Many of the nominated shows have worked with AHAs Film and Television Unit to ensure the safety of animal actors.

As the 58th annual Primetime Emmy Awards ceremony approaches, the American Humane Association (AHA) salutes several nominated shows for actively promoting the well-being of animal actors during the 2005-2006 television season. Many networks and studios worked closely with the AHAs certified animal safety representatives to review scripts and monitor animal activities on the set.
