

Stamps of Support

Animal lovers can show their love for animals and support the Humane Society of the United States with special Humane Society postage.

Posted: October 5, 2006, 5 a.m. EST

Signed, sealed, delivered — and stamped with a special animal-themed postage stamp. Now animal lovers can show their support for the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) and its animal welfare programs with stamps that raise awareness about the needs of pets and wildlife.

Featured artwork includes colorful paintings by Ron Burns, the HSUS's artist in residence, and cartoon images by Patrick McDonnell featuring the popular characters from his comic strip, "Mutts." Burns' images include portraits of three adopted pets: Andy, Orville and Griffin. McDonnell's artwork spotlights his trademark cat and dog cavorting together to convey the importance of spaying and neutering pets and the benefits of adopting a companion animal.

When you purchase Humane Society stamps, 20 percent of the net sale goes to support the HSUS programs. To learn more about the stamps and to view the available images, visit <http://www.zazzle.com/hsus>.